

NINE MARTYRS AT CYZICUS

The city of Cyzicus is in Asia Minor on the coast of the Dardenelles. Christianity already began to spread there through the preaching of St. Paul. During the persecutions by the pagans, some of the Christians fled the city, while others kept their faith in Christ in secret.

At the end of the third century Cyzicus was still basically a pagan city, although there was a Christian church there. The situation in the city distressed the Christians, who sought to uphold Christianity. The nine holy martyrs Thaumasius, Theognes, Rufus, Antipater, Theostichus, Artemas, Magnus, Theodotus, and Philemon were of different ages and of various backgrounds: soldiers, countryfolk, city people and clergy. All of them declared their faith in Christ and prayed for the spread of Christianity.

The saints boldly confessed Christ and fearlessly denounced the pagan impiety. They were arrested and brought to trial before the ruler of the city. Over several days they were tortured, locked in prison and brought out again. They were promised freedom if they renounced Christ. But the valiant martyrs of Christ continued to glorify the Lord. All nine martyrs were beheaded by the sword and their bodies buried near the city.

In the year 324, when the Eastern half of the Roman Empire was ruled by Constantine the Great, and the persecutions against Christians ended, the Christians of Cyzicus removed the incorrupt bodies of the martyrs from the ground and placed them in a church built in their honor. Various miracles occurred from the holy relics: the sick were healed, and the mentally deranged were brought to their senses. The faith of Christ grew within the city through the intercession of the holy martyrs, and many of the pagans were converted to Christianity.

FOURTH SUNDAY OF PASCHA

Sunday of the Paralytic

Nine Martyrs at Cyzicus: Theognes, Rufus, Antipater, Theostichus, Artemas, Magnus, Theodotus Thaumasius, and Philemon;

Ven. Memnon the Wonderworker;

*Martyrs Diodorus and Rhodopianus—Deacon, at Aphrodisia in Anatolia;
St. Basil, Bishop of Ostrog in Montenegro*

“By the pool of Bethsaida the Lord found a man paralyzed from youth. In His compassion, He restored the man to health, saying: Take up your mat and go your way, along the path of righteousness.”

Exapostilarion, Tone I

“Behold these brave and handsome witnesses for Christ: Nine martyrs who openly professed the triple-sunned Divinity. When their trial began, they cried out with one accord: We offer You our souls and bodies drenched in our own blood, Master. In Your mercy, number us among the saints of heaven.”

Kondakion, Tone II

SPECIAL IOCC COLLECTION

During the next several weeks, we will be participating in our annual parish collection for the International Orthodox Christian Charities (IOCC). For over two decades, the IOCC has been a well-established and pro-active charitable agency that helps Orthodox, Christians and people in need throughout the world. The local Cleveland Chapter of the IOCC has actively supported the agency almost from the very beginning. Our collection here at Holy Trinity will be our parish's donation to their upcoming Annual Benefit Dinner on June 3.

A POST-PASCHAL SERMON BY ST. JOHN CHRYSOSTOM

(A highlight of the Easter Matins service is the reading of the Paschal Sermon by St. John Chrysostom. In powerful and glorious language the Saint proclaims the all-encompassing spiritual joy that comes through the Resurrection of Our Lord. But as he was aware of the decrease in attendance and in the flagging of religious zeal after Pascha, St. John's commentary on what happens after the Feast are words to heed, appropriate today as they were centuries ago.)

Pascha comes and there is a great stir, a great burst of activity, crowds of people enter the churches. There are wonderful services, vigils and hymn-singing. What comes of all this? What is achieved? Not as much as should be, I say, for many come simply out of curiosity and vanity. Pascha goes, activity abates, excitement subsides, and then there sets in the indolence which speaks of much fruitlessness.

But “No,” you will say; “we pray, do we not? We go to church, is that not enough?” Let us remember what Christ said: “Not everyone who says to Me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but those who do the will of My Father who is in Heaven” (Matthew 7:21). There is much to think of there. What are the results of our prayers and our church-going? What are the benefits of hearing the words of the Prophets, Apostles and even of Our Lord Himself? All of those discourses set forth the doctrines of our salvation, which can transform our character anew. But do we listen and absorb, do we take those words to heart?

Soldiers drill to become perfect in tactics; wrestlers frequent the gymnasium to gain skill in wrestling; physicians study carefully, listening to their teachers to become more competent. They all learn more and more, gaining more knowledge and experience, coming to fulfillment and excellence in their pursuits. What do we gain in our religious activity? If by our assembling in churches and by our religious activities we do not gather spiritual fruit, what is the point? Churches are built not just for us to gather, as we can at the market or theatres, but for us to study and learn how we can change for the better, how we can overcome our passions, how we can tame our anger, how we can develop our temperance, how we can perfect our love and compassions for others, how we can become children of God!

The summer will come, and then another winter. Do we sit idly, taken captive by evil passions, inert, unproductive, uncreative, broken, defeated? Look at the chariot-drivers, see how strict and careful they are with themselves and with their animals. They are attentive to long and hard training, to their diet and all other details. Why do I talk of this? To show that if by study and practice we can throttle into submission and control even wild horses, so much the more can we come to throttle and control the evil passions within us. Why do we fail continually to achieve this throughout our life? Because we do not seriously and sufficiently engage in Gospel teachings, nor struggle to overcome our evil ways. We participate in exercises and training for other things, but for spiritual virtue we give nothing of the sort. And so the wild beasts of evil passion, the anger, lust, greed, etc., always operate in us. But with effort, diligence and perseverance, we can grow into the full measure of faith and into the fullness of the glory of Christ's Resurrection.
